
Inauguration Day At APS

Students at the Primary School have been very involved in learning about our country's government. Thanks to Mr. Jim Cobb, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, all first year students have had the opportunity to learn how a voting machine works. Pupils have developed an early awareness of the importance of being an American citizen.

Much student interest was generated during the recent inaugural activities. Some classes viewed portions of the proceedings last Thursday.

Another highlight of the day was a visit from "The Peanut Man." His smile and shape reminded them of our new President in a way they will remember. Learning is an exciting and enjoyable experience for students who are allowed the American way of acquiring knowledge at their own level.

Health Wise # 4

You may never have to climb Mt. Everest. But if you do, you will have to drink plenty of water, much more than you normally drink now.

Teams from many nations were competing with each other to be the first to reach the world's highest peak. The Swiss, who were ready before anyone else, made the first attempt. With a crack team of mountaineers and favorable weather, they were able to place two men within 800 feet of the top. But in spite of every effort, they were unable to reach the summit. Determined not to fail, they sent up another team of two. Victory depended on them, but they too did no better. The entire expedition returned discouraged and defeated. So near, and yet so far.

Dr. John Hunt, physician in charg eof the British Everest expedition, carefully studied the records of the Swiss climbers. He discovered that they drank less than 2 glasses of water per day per man. This was a woefully small amount of water for men who were exerting themselves so hard.

When the Bristish team tackled Mt. Everest the following year, extra fuel and equipment were provided to melt ice and snow. The men were encouraged to drink all the water they could. And the British made it! Hillary and his companion Tenzing, the men who planted the first flag on the world's highest peak, drank an average of 12 glasses a day. In fact they drank so much lemonade that Tenzing called it, "The Lemonade Expedition."

And water can make the difference for you too. Develop a habit of drinking water regularly. A simple program that works for many is to start the day by drinking a glass or two of water just after waking up. Midway through the morning take a break and enjoy another glass or two of cool, sparkling water. Do the same in the afternoon. A final glass in the evening will round out your day and provide your body an abundance of water, that element so essential to life . . . and health.

They chalked up 22 points in the second quarter to lead at the half by 3, 36-33. Scoring 17 points in the third quarter to a Brookville 15, the Raiders increased their lead to 5 points, 53 - 48. In an exciting fourth quarter, the bees ended up with the touch of luck that wins tight ball games. The Bees defeated the Raiders with a score of 68 - 66.

Co-captains Mitch Eggleston was high scorer for Appomattox with 28 points. Tony Snell proved a super threat with 11; "Turk" Wingfield had 10, James Robinson had 8, and Bill Shorter and Joe Fraley had 4 each.
